

Senior Pharmaceutical Physicians and Scientists – UK, US

Push science further, develop innovative clinical programs, help patients more

At AstraZeneca, we are committed to developing new therapies that bring life-changing medicines to more cancer patients.

We are motivated by a dedication to the scientific discovery, strategic clinical programs development and implementation that enable new oncology medicines reach the patients in need.

We seek collaboration with leading experts and institutions that will one-day help eliminate cancer as a cause of death.

We have a wealth of opportunities spanning early and late phase clinical programmes and medical affairs to enable us to drive forward one of the most exciting pipelines in the industry.

As part of our team, you'll have ownership of the design, development and delivery of clinical trial programmes that will generate the data required to drive regulatory submissions for new medicines and expanded indications and provide the evidence that shows their true value.

If you'd relish the prospect of creating life-changing medicines in a dynamic, collaborative environment, find out more at www.careers.astrazeneca.com