

Senior Medical Advisor . Rare Diseases

Permanent role, office based North of London

An experienced pharmaceutical physician is required by a global pharmaceutical company with a history in pioneering rare disease treatments to join them in a newly created role as a Senior Medical Advisor. This is an opportunity to join a company that is expanding internationally, where you will work supporting a strong portfolio and pipeline.

Reporting to the Medical Affairs Director, this brand new role will act as the number two in the UK and Ireland medical affairs team. You will work across portfolio with a key responsibility for an assigned therapy area for which you will provide scientific expertise, highlighting disease awareness both internally and to the wider healthcare community, including building and maintaining strong working relationships with relevant Key Opinion Leaders and Patient Organisations.

To be considered for this position you will be a pharmaceutical physician with proven experience of working in a UK and Ireland medical affairs role. Strong working knowledge of the ABPI and IPHA Code is a pre requisite, and you need to be able to demonstrate examples of successful collaboration with both internal and external stakeholders. Experience as a final medial signatory is preferred.
