

PharmaReview, and our multi-talented team, are dramatically changing how pharma deals with copy review and certification: eliminating errors, reducing re-work, and improving quality. We've been around for almost 10 years, are based in West London, and are growing quickly now numbering 20+ reviewers who are all MBChB, PhD, MSc or MPharm. Our clients are pharma companies, based in the UK, Switzerland and the US.

We are now looking for a medical director to provide mentoring, oversight and advice. This needs to be a person with a particular enthusiasm for, and interest in this area of work, and a natural approach that supports and coaches. The variety of content is enormous and is also constantly changing, which makes it sustainable and rewarding. At the same time, we offer stability, in that we have a proven approach and commit only to what is within our expertise and we know we can deliver. The work is not only internal, there will be a significant client-facing component and opportunity to contribute to developing the business.

You will be a positive, energetic pharmaceutical physician, registered with the GMC and probably have 10+ years of UK-based medical affairs experience. You will know what we are about and want to be a part of our continuing drive for change. You must have the ability to instil confidence, be open to others' advice and interpretations, and relish speed and curiosity.

We are located at Chiswick Park, London W4, (see <https://enjoy-work.com/>), and work normal office hours, with little in the way of travel for business or out-of-hours work. We have corporate membership of an on-site Virgin Health club. Chiswick Park is on two tube lines and rail Overground and there are excellent cycle-to-work facilities. Right now, we are mostly working from home and have seen how successful home working can be, so we may build this into our way of working in the future.

The post is a full-time, permanent position.
